PERIODICAL NOTES

A recent check of our current periodical list revealed that there are a number of interesting and informative magazines in the library which are being read by only a few individuals in the region.

Because we feel that you will want some of these added to your reading list we are listing a few of them with a short descriptive note.

If you are not familiar with the title and wish to see them before having your name added to the circulation list, ask us to send you a recent issue for examination. Another list will appear in the July NEWSLETTER.

AMERICAN BEE JOURNAL. Monthly.

For you beekeepers and those of you who are working with beekeepers. This journal contains practical articles on "What to do" and "how to do it." The March issue had an article entitled "Soil Conservation Crops Make Honey." There is a question and answer department, and, attention ladies! A page of recipes.

THE AMERICAN ECONOMIC REVIEW. Quarterly.

Solid discussions of economic conditions and problems. The type of article to supplement your special subject reading by giving a background of information on labor, unionism, consumer problems, inflation, and finance to mention but a few of the subjects covered.

ASSOCIATION OF AMERICAN GEOGRAPHERS. ANNALS. Quarterly.

Technical articles which will be of interest to conservationists, cartographers, soil scientists, land economists, as well as geographers. The following articles which appeared in the 1943 volume indicates the type of information to be found here: "The Geography of Human Productivity" by Ellsworth Huntington; "The Unincorporated Hamlet: One Element in the American Settlement Fabric" by Glenn T. Trewartha; "Grassland and Farmland as Factors in the Cyclical Development of Eurasian History" by J. Russell Smith; "Adjustment of Agriculture to its Environment" by H. H. Bennett; "Maps and a Mapping program for the United States" by F. J. Marschner.

EN GUARDIA. PARA LA DEFENCA DE LAS AMÉRICAS. Monthly.

A pictorial review published in Spanish by The Office of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs. Publishes beautifully illustrated articles on the North and South American countries. This is not an agricultural magazine, but there are frequent articles on agricultural subjects and rural life.

FARM AND RANCH. Monthly.

Published in Dallas, Texas this magazine is called "The Farm Paper of the Southwest," and offers agricultural articles of particular interest to agriculturists in this region.

PROGRESSIVE FARMER. Monthly.

The Texas edition of this well known southern farm paper has popular articles on farm and home.

PUBLIC ADMINISTRATION REVIEW. Quarterly.

Here is a publication for administrators. It is the official journal of the American Society for Public Administration whose purpose is "To Advance the Science, Processes, and Art of Public Administration." Written by Administrators, teachers, and students of public administration the articles are authoritative and present the current thinking on public policy and administration.

RURAL SOCIOLOGY. Quarterly.

This periodical "Devoted to Scientific Study of Rural Life" is a "must" for persons engaged in the Farm Security Administration program and could be profitably read by all USDA employees. Rural health, leadership, farmer attitudes, settlement, migrant labor, standards of living are but a few of the subjects discussed in recent issues.

SOCIAL FORCES. Quarterly.

Of particular interest to sociologists this periodical is "A Scientific Medium of Social Study and Interpretation." Those engaged in the social program of the Department will want to see this regularly for its authoritative articles on the social problems of the day.

SURVEY GRAPHIC. Monthly.

A periodical of general interests. The articles deal with a variety of social and economic problems of the day.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO ROUND TABLE. Weekly

Transcript of the popular radio program. Concise information on current questions. "Jobs: A World Problem;" "Can we Re-educate the Enemy?" "Hemisphere Development and the Common Man" are a few of the topics recently discussed.
